

He Dared to Tell the Truth

*John Beaty was a real American hero
when he exposed the Communist-Zionist plot to destroy America*

BY GEORGE HERMES

IN DECEMBER 1961, a new book exploded like a bombshell over a highly select segment of the American public. It was The Iron Curtain Over America by Dr. John O. Beaty. Five hundred copies were sent to key individuals in government, the military, industry, and finance.

News of the book spread like wildfire. The remaining copies were sold as quickly as orders could be filled.

The Anti-Defamation League was panic-stricken. After all, the author had been a colonel in a U.S. military intelligence service and apparently knew his subject!

Lights burned late on Wall Street, and at the White House and the Kremlin. The ADL was vehement. Every effort would be made to suppress the "inflammatory" book.

Quietly, in strategic circles, the ADL denounced the book as "anti-Semitic." John Beaty, they said, was a lunatic who should be committed to an asylum. They demanded removal of the book from all public places. Supporters of the book were attacked, vilified, threatened. Coerced newspaper editors refused to advertise it.

Conventional channels of book distribution and promotion were largely closed. Few literary critics dared review it. Finally, an iron curtain of silence descended—suppressing the book to this day. However, a new effort is now being made to call ICOA to the attention of more Americans.

Disregarding threats to his life, John Beaty, himself, published The Iron Curtain Over America. No publisher dared touch it. John's home was bombarded with obscene phone calls. His lovely wife, Josephine Powell Beaty, and their children were publicly abused, the life of his young daughter threatened.

In the book, John Beaty not only reveals the international duality of Zionism-Communism in action, but he also exposes and irrefutably documents Zionist-Communist subversive activity within the United States of America: the singular purpose of this cabal being to destroy the United States and all of Western Civilization. Upon reading and understanding this book we now know with overwhelming certainty who the Enemy is. Knowing our Enemy we can be prepared to cope with him before he destroys us.

ICOA is more timely today than when it was first published. Readers of THE AMERICAN MERCURY don't have to be told that the highest ranking army officer in the United States, General George E. Brown, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, recently warned all Americans that Jews control the machinery of our government. The General implies that our Congress and Executive Branch takes orders from the Kremlin. You can no longer depend upon politicians to legislate in the best interests of the United States.

A Half Century of Defeats

Now you know why America has emerged victorious from two devastating wars against Christian Europe, only to lose the peace to the Kremlin. Now you know why we fought no-win wars in Korea and Viet Nam; why we disgraced ourselves at the Bay of Pigs, and in the Liberty and Pueblo incidents.

What does it take to make Boobus Americanus mad enough to fight for what belongs to him? Your cities have disintegrated; your schools are in shambles; your children are being defiled with dope, pornography and cultural amnesia. Integration and miscegenation with Blacks is forced upon you. What's the matter with you? Why don't you fight? Have you lost your nerve or are you just plain stupid?

The only way that you can get America back as a White Christian Nation is to fight for her—in the streets, if necessary! The next step in the Zionist-Communist plan is to have your guns taken from you. Don't let them!

John Beaty isn't here to lead us during the dangerous days that lie ahead. But he has left us with a legacy, and a message, and directives that we must follow if we are to survive as a people. Many Americans have never heard of John Beaty.

Born in Virginia

John O. Beaty was born and raised on a farm in the foothills of Virginia's beautiful Blue Ridge Mountains. He was of Scotch-

Irish ancestry. Like many men of that noble breed he grew up to be a big man—six feet tall and hard as a rock. Like his dad, he had a shock of red hair. His thoughtful brown eyes would cloud over like a summer storm when he was angry or they would twinkle with mischief—like a happy leprechaun. "My father," said John, "was tall, red-haired and determined. He came over the mountain from Warren with a broad-ax on his shoulder. He could hew a tie faster than another man could walk the length of it." John Beaty had good blood.

Dr. Beaty was a big man in many ways. He lived by the enduring values of Honor, Loyalty, Courage, and Justice. He had a deep faith in his great Christian Western Heritage. His wife, and his three red-headed children adored him. "He had an aura of kindness and quiet strength about him," Mrs. Beaty said, "and good humor, too." As a farm lad "he performed his chores with energy, thoroughness, and good spirit," so wrote his father to the Dean of Admissions at Jefferson School, Charlottesville. The Negro retainer who as a boy grew up with John, and who still helps Mrs. Beaty at the farm, says that John Beaty was "the best man with a horse—and a gun—that I ever did see."

Like most farmers, John Beaty had a profound respect for Nature. He said it was nonsense that man should ever think he could measure Her, or tame Her.

Men who come to grips with Nature, as all farmers do, sense the inexorable ebb and flow of life within Nature's Grand Design. All living things are interlinked and engaged in relentless competition. Natural selection keeps the gene-pool strong. In the reality of Nature the meek and mild do not inherit the earth. Nor do the fat and lazy. The strong have a tendency to survive. Even the strong, however, are subject to internal diseases seeking to destroy them, and that's what The Iron Curtain Over America is all about.

Dr. Beaty held in contempt the urbanized ideologue and bleeding-heart liberal. While observing Nature through thermopane windows they postulate theories of Pure Reason that are completely contrary to Realities. Hence, they would feed and clothe the unfortunates of the entire world at the peril of America's own physical and financial security. John Beaty saw the narrow-eyed, yellow visage of the Kremlin gangsters on the horizon, waiting only for the strategic moment to pounce on an America led by soft-palmed idiots.

John Beaty received his Bachelor of Arts Degree and Master's Degree in Language from the University of Virginia. He was elected to Phi Beta Kappa for excellence in scholarship, winning gold medal awards for poetry, essay, and oratory. He was inducted into the Raven Society. Upon graduation he was awarded numerous scholarships including the Bennett E. Green Award for foreign study.

Strong Convictions

Like many physically strong men John Beaty had a gentle and kindly manner. Opponents, quick to take advantage of what might have been a sign of weakness, soon learned that behind his Christian demeanor lay strong convictions and a determination not to be contended with. He once remarked that "compromise never won a football game—or a war" (which may sum up the won/lost record suffered by the University of Michigan when young Gerald Ford played on their squad). Columbia University conferred the Doctor of Philosophy Degree upon him. Today, Dr. Beaty's name appears on the Literary Map of the Commonwealth of Virginia alongside such illustrious names as George Washington, Patrick Henry, Thomas Jefferson, and Edgar Allen Poe.

In 1919, John Beaty joined the faculty of Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Texas, where he attained the longest tenure in the history of that University. Upon his retirement, in 1957, as head of the English Department he was eulogized by 13 speakers representing the student body and almost all Departments of the University. The Iron Curtain Over America, today, occupies an important place in the library of that outstanding institution of learning.

Historian and Novelist

At the age of 45, Dr. Beaty received world-wide acclaim and recognition from the publication of his novel, Swords in the Dawn, an account of the founding of England. Many writings followed, including Image of Life—which examines 20th Century literature in relationship to our Western Heritage; Race and Population, documented by his travels through 29 countries, was a disregarded prophecy of WW II. His last book, Crossroads (1957) is a beautifully conceived and poignant novel depicting the confrontation of the new South with the old South that John Beaty loved.

In WW I he served in England and France. In WW II he became a Colonel in the Military Intelligence Service, General Staff, The Pentagon. In this capacity he had a unique opportunity to explore the history, resources, ideologies, capabilities and intentions of the great powers—terrifyingly different from the picture presented to the American public. He had at his disposal technical facilities, and all files of the Military Intelligence Service. Of equal importance he had the unsurpassed opportunity to interview key world figures from almost every rank and station in life.

In performing his duties he researched records, documents and dossiers, covering sensitive areas of espionage, and Communist-Zionist subversive activities in the United States and throughout the world. His studies regarding the Zionist conspiracy against Germany converted Dr. Beaty into a strong revisionist and defender of that brave Christian nation. It was Dr. Beaty's discoveries that disclosed for the first time in America, the lie that six-million Jews had been murdered during WW II in Germany.

Looking back upon his career Dr. Beaty remarked that everything he had participated in and learned up to that time had led him, by Divine Guidance, to write The Iron Curtain Over America. Upon publication of that monumental work Dr. Beaty was gratified to receive assurances of support, and congratulations from many
